Our cool and cloudy weather is still lingering with us. Snowing is what our crops need now.

The majority of the farmers have finished their spring work, and some of them are beginning fencing and breaking.

Glen Fallow & Vicinity

Our weather has warmed up, and the grain and gardens are coming fine.

Arthur Johnston, wife and baby, have moved in here from Peachland, Okanagan Valley, B.C., the wonderful fruit country. Many people here are wild to get a home in that country, and a great many people have already left here for that country or the States. Mr. Johnston has been over a great part of the U.S., practically all over B.C.—to England, France and Belgium. He says this land is the best for the price he has seen in all his travels with all our cold weather. He intends to settle right here. # Business Procedure Between Nations To be Arranged

London.—A system of commercial procedure for the benefit of Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and the United States will be drafted at the initial meeting of the international chamber of commerce in Paris from June 12 to July, with the view of suppressing unfair competition, acceleration of transportation of raw materials, reconstruction of the war-damaged region, the economic organization of the new states and stabilization of exchange.

This agreement was reached here at a meeting of the general organization committee. # Problems of West Discussed at Big Industrial Congress

Calgary.—The second annual industrial congress opening at Calgary attracted several hundred business men and farmers from all parts of the country. A feature was the appearance of 200 members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the weather man was on his good behavior. President M. A. Brown opened the congress, and premier Stewart welcomed the delegates and visitors. In his address he emphasized the value of the congress to the province, "effort that had made the meeting an annual affair. As president Howard of the manufacturers' association said the work of the congress is to be a help, managed by men of vision who are helping put the west on the map and develop a spirit of co-operation throughout the Dominion. Col. Dennis discussed irrigation, one of the important problems of the west, and P. H. Peters, commissioner of irrigation, talked along the same lines. T. A. Hornbrook, president of the board of trade, and mayor P. C. Marshall, of Calgary, added their own views to the general state of welcome. The speeches were concluded by R. B. Bennett.

Hon. J. P. Smith, speaking as the representative of the province, said that the province was anxious to encourage a well rounded business condition. He knew there was some uncertainty in general conditions, but he believed the city just as necessary as the rural district. It is necessary in this day of complicated social conditions. The administration more workable. Since the budget was brought down in committee, the finance minister has been in constant receipt of representations with regard to the luxury taxes and the sales tax. ## Value of Good Railways

Hon. S. J. Latta Speaks of the Importance of Good Roads

Winipeg.—The keynote of all good work in western Canada, and for that matter throughout the whole Dominion, was struck by the Hon. S. J. Latta, minister of highways for Saskatchewan, at the conclusion of the Canadian Good Roads convention when he affirmed that the essence of civilization was the road. He pointed out the things that touched the home the nearest transportation facilities. The minister had been describing the Canadian progress of the war and the making of the immigrant of European nationality a British citizen and he impressed his hearers that they had no more to get than to understand the institutions of Canada, but they had to get them into a receptive frame of mind, and nothing would do more to produce this, he said, than getting them to love the country, because of what the country was doing for them.

Toronto.—The Globe published the following dispatch from Hickman, Ky.:

Then he purchased a suit of clothes for his son, and found that the money he received for the wool was enough to pay for the suit. He says there are about four pounds of wool in a suit of clothes, and on that basis the wool he sold would make a suit, which is sold at $60 a suit, would bring the seller $30.00. Although one-half for labor and other materials going into the suit, somebody will get a return of $15.00 on a $60 investment, he figures.

"Unfortunately the old machinery still remains," adds the general, "and it is astonishing that statesmen have not been able to see that the new situation is a new situation. The first arrivals from Mayo Camp bring highly favorable reports of all prospects in the Keno Hills district.

Respect Wishes of Canada

London.—In the house of commons yesterday a motion was carried by 210 to 100 that it be the duty of the British and Canadian governments that it would be inadvisable to proceed at present with the correspondence regarding the appointment of a Canadian representative at Washington.

Perey Duff and Sir Robert Borden, secretary of the dominions, in this answer but Andrew Ross Law said that the British government must consider all the desires of the Canadian government in such matters.

Burned British Flag

Washington.—The United States State Department has asked the District of Columbia commissioners for a statement of fact as to the burning of a British flag, which was done by a woman sympathizer with Irish freedom.

Munitions Decisions June 16

London.—A meeting to decide whether a special workers' convention would be called to consider the boycott on handling munitions for Ireland had been called by the parliamentary committee of the British trade unions.

Protest Against Decision

Say Italy's Desires Same War Indemnity As Belgium

Rome.—The entire press protests against the decision of the Hythe conference granting Italy only seven percent of the war indemnity while Belgium is granted ten percent. The Triumvirate says:

"We are in the line to how to the heron and sacrifice of the Belgian people. On the field of financial reparation, however, we must point out that Belgium had only a limited area devastated, that her stock in cattle were returned and her machinery which was removed, restored in great part to its former state."

Equality for Dominions

Free State States Are United Under One King

London.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a special interview with General Smuts at Capetown in which he reiterates that the war transformed the Dominions into sister states.

"Unfortunately the old machinery still remains," adds the general, "and it is astonishing that statesmen have not been able to see that the new situation is a new situation. I have insisted on a constitutional change in the empire and I am also insisting on a constitutional change in the dominions. The British people must realize this great constitutional fact that there is a complete equality of rights and freedom enjoyed by the sister states and united by the king. Your constitutional problem is to find new machinery to fit this new situation."

Appeal to Unions

Irish Ask British Workers to Refuse To Handle Munitions

Dublin.—The strike committee in Dublin issued a manifesto to the workers in Great Britain asking them to support the Irish position by refusing to handle munitions for Ireland.

Strip your minds of the religious and political atmosphere of the question, says the manifesto, "and face it in the same light you would on the shores of France to fight the Prussian hordes."

London.—David Lloyd George, the premier, received a deputation of the National Union of Railway Men with letters and orders and good luck in their quest for the American cup, with his hat Shamrock IV, against either the Redoubt or the Queen Alexandra, in expressing her hope that Sir Thomas would win with the Shamrock IV, said: "Certainly, but I am not too sure, for then there would be no sport for anyone."

The Duke of York

London.—Only one peacetime is bestowed in the King's birthday honours and that is conferred on Prince Albert, who has become the Duke of York and is conferred on Baron Kitchener.

Prince Albert, said the Duke of York, is the son of the late King Edward's second son. The majority of honours are for services rendered during the war.

Yukon Free of Ice

Dawson, Y. T.—The Yukon River is now entirely free from ice from Lake Labovard northward. Advice from Interior Alaska say all restrictions there against travel because of influenza are being lifted as there have been no new cases in the last 13 days. The first arrivals from Mayo Camp bring highly favorable reports of all prospects in the Keno Hills district.

"Are you feeling a little better, M?" he inquired gently.

"Yes, I'm better. I'll soon be well."

He understood, and he held the little hand, stretched out to him, in both his own.

"You're not quite as well as you say this morning," he said, hesitatingly. "I guess I know the reason."

She did not reply, but lay with her eyes closed, and Boy saw tears creep down the white cheeks. He spoke fiercely.

"He threatened as he'd do it, and he did it," he said.

He checked himself, biting the words off with a click of his white teeth.

"I know just what he told you. Ma, I know all he told you, and he didn't tell me. I haven't been to his school and I can't go to his school. I've tried my best to stay away from him, but you wanted me to. But I go wild. I can't stay still inside like that and be in prison. It chokes me, I tell you. I don't want more lessons than I have. I can read and write and figure. You taught me that, and I have learned from you, I assure you."

His voice faltered and feebly, the mother drew him close behind her on the bed.

"Poor old Boy," she sobbed, reaching out, smoothing the dark curls back from his forehead, then sorrowfully, "I wonder why you should hate that for which so many people are striving."

"Don't ma," she didn't speak about it. You know we talked it over before. You called it enlightenment, you remember? I don't want more lessons. I hate it. I'll fight it away from me, and I'll have to fight it away from them. He shuddered, and she held him tight in her weak arms.

"Dear Boy," she said, "it will be a useless struggle. You can't pass up to hold your little world. No, go, and God bless you. Kiss me goodnight, Boy."

He bent and kissed her on the forehead, then springing up, he left the room. At the door he halted.

"Yes, ma," he said by way of response to her call.

"Did you meet the teacher?"

"One moment he vacillated between love and truth. Once he had lied, unconvincingly, to save her. But he hated a liar. He went back to the bed slowly."

"Yes, I met him, and I told him that he best be leavin' this part."

His eyes rested upon him in mingled love and wonder.

"I don't like it—I don't trust that man," said the mother earnestly.

"Now go, Boy, and God bless you."

When Boy sought the table again the tea and meat were stone cold. He smiled at the girl, who was standing beside the fireplace, and she said, teasingly:

"I told you you better not go."

"The man with the fiddle across his knees straightened up at her words, and he looked over at her with a puzzled expression on his face."

"Thought maybe you'd joined a flock of woodcock and gone south," he remarked.

"Wonder you can leave the back long enough to get your meals. Wherever you been, Boy?"

"Nowhere much," answered the boy, looking hard at his plate.

"Well we had that teacher chap over again tonight," said the father, "—a man feller that."

Boy glanced up quickly and caught a gleam of humor in the speaker's eyes.

Then he looked at the girl. She was laughing quietly.

"The teacher says that you've been absenting yourself from school," went on the man. "I asked him if he absentia was a regular habit in scholars name as awapin' jackknives, and you ought to have seen the look he gave me."

"It's a punishable offence," he said. "Well, I don't mind you whaling Boy some, I say, I'm sure he won't."

"I won't whip a big boy like him," he don't have to, and I won't whip a boy who don't want to go to school. 'Well I don't mind you whaling Boy some, I say, I'm sure he won't.'"

"The big man stood up and stretched his six-foot-two figure with enjoyment. He laid his huge fist on the old fiddle, looked like a hand mirror. He threw back his shaggy head and laughed so loudly that the burning log in the fire place looked in terror and there a sliver of red and golden sparks up the wide chimney.

"When we were taken and I was caught," the visitor set up to supper and make himself at home, who should drop in but Bill Paisley him self. Gosh, it was fun to see how he looked in the teacher. "Nice night, says Bill, bowin' low and lifin' off his cap. I shook my head at him, but he didn't pay any attention, so I went on and on. 'I'm a school. Bill got out his pipe and fell in all his pockets, kept his eyes right on the teacher and grinnin' so foolish I nearly choked on a pork-rind."

"Would you mind oblige me with a tip of Canada Green?" he asked. "I suppose you have a plug of tin in your pocket, sir."

"The teacher frowned at him. 'I don't smoke Canada Green,' says he, 'but I'll smoke a plug of tin.'"

"'Claw, maybe?' grinned Bill, puttin' his pipe away and lickin' his lips expectant."

"'No, nor claw—say you call it.'"

"'Dear me,' sighed Bill, and after a while he says, 'dear me again.'"

"By and by Paisley timbered up and told the teacher he was right down glad to meet a man fearless enough to come to this wild place in the heart of Canada."

"'You're a martyr, sir,' says Bill, 'a brave man, to come where so many dangers beset the place. Swamp fevers that come and go, and the little shakes your front teeth back where your back teeth are now and your back teeth where your front ones are. There are black snakes in these parts,' says Bill, 'that have got so used to bitin' Injuns they move in a stroke, and they'll travel miles to get a whack at a white man. Particularly a stranger, says he. 'Then there be wolves here big as two-year-olds. There is an Indian, one naturally, hopes it will grow up to be a good and successful city.'"

"The teacher squirmed. 'I'll get used to all that,' he said."

"'Sure,' agreed Bill, 'but just the same I'll tell you, you're brave and a husky chap. Met any of our Injuns yet?'"

"'A few,' said the young fellow, looking at his watch."

"'Injuns are mighty queer reptiles,' says Bill, 'but you'll get along with 'em all right if you humor 'em with presents and attend their gun-works. Might be a good idea to let on there's Injun blood in you. But whatever you do, don't let 'em know you're a white little bigger blood in you, nor tell 'em. Injuns naturally hate niggers.'"

"Bill got up and went in to say goodnight to the teacher. He was a little bit of a fellow, says the teacher, when he came out. 'I suppose you've learned among other things, that there's a quack a doctor as talks too much, so be careful.'"

"When Bill went away Goss and me sat down and listened to what Goss had to say. 'She wants to see you mister,' he says to the teacher, when he came out. 'I suppose you've learned among other things, that there's a quack a doctor as talks too much, so be careful.'"

HOW BIG A THING IS CHIROPRACTIC?

Chiropiric comes upon the field and makes vast pretensions. For five thousand years the best minds of the medical profession have watched the lessons and the earth trying in vain to find the cause of disease, which Chiropiric teaches is the fault within the body. Against the wonderful organization known as the American Medical Association, with its endorsements of millions, its secure position in the educational institutions, and the popular prejudice of the general public, Chiropiric has nothing to put but the constant increasing "whereas I was sick and am now well" of those upon whom all other methods had failed.

To succeed where all others fail is the supreme test, and unless Chiropiric can do this it has no excuse for its existence. Honest and open minded members of other health professions acknowledge its merits, while progressive and forward looking ones study it and are led in ever increasing numbers to adopt it and abandon their former methods.

Unfortunately it has also attracted to itself a horde of pretenders who find the word Chiropiric the most profitable addition they can make to their business card.

What the B.L.K. Milker Does

It has been demonstrated by hundreds of dairymen that the B.L.K. Milker will milk thoroughly. It removes the milk from the udder, free from the trouble and expense of careless hired help, for a larger herd can be milked with less labor and expense. The great advantage of B.L.K. Milking is the big saving every year in actual cost. When you add the other advantages you cannot but admit that milking by the B.L.K. method has got hand milking beat by a mile.
